

What is Woman's Greatest Charm?

—In response to the offer of a prize of $20 in gold by the New York Press for the best answer to Walter Besant's question, "What is a woman's greatest charm?" about 3,000 answers were received. The prize was awarded to a lady, the copy readers saying in their report that "it has been very difficult to make a choice between about 50 of the best letters; the letter of Gen. W. J. Landrum being among that number." The "prize letter" and the "Kentuckian's Picture" are given below.

"Womanliness" is the greatest charm. Here it is described.

The most fascinating women are those that most enrich the every day moments of existence.—Leigh Hunt.

Kindness in women, not their beautiful looks, shall win my love.—Shakespeare.

"This beauty that doth oft make women proud; tis virtue that doth make them most admired.—Shakespeare.

And this virtue is the innate womanliness that is the distinct charm of every womanly woman, be she as fair as Helen or as homely as George Eliot; as graceful as Psyche or as unprepossessing as Mine. de Stael.

The charm of woman has ever been the uppermost theme of poets, painters and philosophers. They have dwelt on her beauty of expression, of color, of notion, of mold; on the delicate beauties of her mind and heart; on her almost supernatural instinct and her natural tendency toward the right rather than the wrong; each in its own way celebrating those attributes of womanliness as the intangible something that sets her above and apart.

It is this womanliness that wins love and commands respect; that makes her strong in helpfulness when concerned for those she loves, yet clinging and trusting as a child on the stronger nature necessary for the rounding out of her existence; the womanliness that is her shield in dubious places, and her defense in danger, that makes her gentle and loving, quick of sympathy, patient in endurance, eager to forgive, generous and self sacrificing and that makes the world lovelier and purer for its existence.

The womanliness that makes her beautiful in the eyes of the men who live for her and die for her as mother, sweetheart and wife, and whose price is far above moles.—Margaret Reyburn.

IN PATIENCE LIES THE ART OF SHEEDING HAPPINESS AROUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—Sir:—The art of making happy those with whom she is associated is woman's greatest charm. A brilliant mind may for the moment elicit applause, but unaccompanied by a sympathetic heart, its power is like the meteor that flashes and is lost to sight forever. Adulation, if excessive, degenerates into sycophancy and its recipient tires.

A combination of beauty, dignity, modesty and amiability would seem to exhaust the catalogue of charms; and yet without the patience that beareth all things believeth all things, hopeth all things and endureth all things, they would fail to hold with any degree of certainty the admiration and love they may have temporarily secured. It follows, therefore, as a logical conclusion, that patience is the greatest charm that a woman can possess and that contentment is beyond the reach of all who cannot be made happy through its potent instrumentality. W. J. LANDRUM.

Landrum, Ky.

DANVILLE.—Adjuster Forward, of the Fina, has been here and settled in full for the $1,500 insurance on Mr. A. E. Hundley's residence, recently destroyed by fire. The house cost Mr. Hundley $7,000, which leaves his loss still considerable. The grand jury found 17 indictments, 16 for misdemeanors and one for felony. John W. Engleman, formerly of this place, but now of Lexington, sold last week to Barney J. Tracy, for $1,500, the 3-year-old bay filly, Roberta, by Bermuda 2-201, dam Rena C, the dam of Messenger Wilkes 2-23, and Ben V. 2-291. B. G. Fox sold for Joe E. Wright, of Lincoln, to L. H. Cabell, Camp Knox, a 2-year-old Jack, by Joe Blackburn, for $600.—Advocate.

The great difficulty in punishing crime in Kentucky is the delay in trials. What with sickness of lawyers, absence of witnesses and the courtesy and good nature of courts, a criminal is rarely placed upon trial for months after the commission of his misdoings. Witnesses die, are scattered, cajoled out of the jurisdiction of the courts until it is almost impossible to have a hearing; until everybody is worn out with the case. This is in a very large measure the fault of the judges. They are too ready and too easy in permitting continuance. The press of Kentucky should see to it that a public sentiment is created, which will prevent the easy-going disposition of justice, and require that violators at the law shall be tried in some reasonable time.—Louisville Post.

—Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington were born in 1769. They reappeared on the scene at Waterloo and, but for the arrival of the German army, Napoleon would have captured and destroyed the army of the Duke. Gen. Grant was not an admirer of Napoleon, but the majority of the American people side with the Emperor in his last great battle.

—The New York Press was asked "When did the expression, 'a pig in a poke,' originate?" and answered: "Pig in a poke," as our proverb puts it, means a blind bargain. The French say, 'Acheter chat en poche.' This refers to the trick often resorted to in France of substituting a cat for a sucking pig and palping it off on greenhorns. Hence another expression. If one let the cat out of the bag, the trick was disclosed."

Knights of Honor.

The Order of Knights of Honor is now in the front rank of the great fraternal and beneficiary societies of the day. Golden Lodge No. 1 was organized June 30, 1873, and so rapidly has the order spread that to-day there are over 4,000 lodges in the U. S., with a membership Jan. 1, 1892, of 135,011. During the 18 years of the order's existence 19,163 members have died, and to the widows and orphans of these deceased brothers has been paid the enormous sum of $37,296,484.26 to Feb. 14, 1892. So nicely adjusted is the machinery of the order that the collecting and disbursing of this vast amount of money has not cost the beneficiaries one cent.

From the organization of the order to March 1, 1892, there were 325 assessments, or an average of a little over 17 per year, costing members between the ages of 18 and 45 years, $1 for each assessment. The sum of $2,000 is paid the family of each full-rate member in good standing at the time of his death.

In 1878 its strength was severely tested by the yellow fever epidemic in the South. The number of members at that time was about 45,000. An extraordinary loss of 193 members fell upon the order in a few weeks by the epidemic, requiring $385,000 for its liquidation, in addition to the usual losses by other diseases at the same time, all of which was promptly paid. To show that the order is gaining strength all the time, for the eight weeks ending Feb. 13, 1892, there were 1,450 applications filed in the Supreme Reporter's office, and death losses are paid in 30 days from date of death.

The assessments on the members range as follows: Between the ages of 18 and 45, $1; 45 and 46, $1.05; 46 and 47, $1.10; 47 and 48, $1.20; 48 and 49, $1.30; 49 and 50, $1.50. This, the amount paid by applicant on joining, remains his assessment for life.

Hope Lodge No. 19, of this place, is one of the oldest lodges in the order. It was instituted April 15, 1874, and will soon be 18 years old. It numbers among its members men in all the various walks of life. The membership at present numbers 40. It holds regular meetings the 1st and 3d Friday nights in each month. A. C. Sine is Past Dictator; J. M. Hubbard, Dictator; Peter Hampton, Vice Dictator; H. C. Farris, Assistant Dictator; A. A. Warren, Reporter; Geo. D. Wearan, Financial Reporter; John J. McRoberts, Treasurer; J. W. Alcorn, A. R. Penny and John Bright, Trustees.

The Lodge is in a strong condition financially and pays assessments to the Supreme Treasurer promptly. Since the Lodge was instituted there has been paid to the widows and orphans of members of the Lodge the sum of $16,000, besides a very large amount in the way of sick benefits.

Experience has demonstrated that the K. of H. furnishes protection at a cost of about one-third of the amount required in a regular insurance company. The utmost precautions are taken in admission of members. No human agency, after that, can check the inevitable reduction in the roll of death.

—The town board held its regular meeting last Monday night and discussed with Mr. Jones, engineer for the L. & N., the plan and advisability of building a foot bridge over the railroad just north of the depot where the road runs through a deep cut. It is not only very inconvenient but very dangerous in its present condition, as a great many children have to cross the railroad going to and returning from school. The railroad proposes to furnish the iron and have the work done if the town will furnish the wood work and keep it in repair. The board agreed to accept the proposition and appointed Mr. J. S. Jones, one of their number, to make the contract and sign it for the town.

—The regular municipal election took place last Saturday with more than the usual interest. Messrs. J. H. Davis, C. H. Keston, J. S. Gatlin, J. S. Jones, Thos. O'Mara, Joe Stepp and J. A. Ingram were elected trustees. W. H. Ross was elected marshal by 80 majority over his opponent, Griffin Bird. All the interest centered in the judge's race. The candidates for that honorable position were H. H. Tye, R. T. Hemphill and C. M. Buch. The friends of the respective candidates went in with the determination to win, but about 3 o'clock Mr. Buch withdrew and left the field to his opponents, who had not differed more than three votes during the day and at 6 o'clock they were a tie. Both sides ransacked the town for votes and Mr. Hemphill's friends found two, while Mr. Tye's friends were more fortunate and found nine, closing the polls with Mr. Tye seven in the lead. Mr. Tye is a young lawyer here, while Mr. Hemphill has lived here several years. Mr. Tye was unable to be out of his bed on election day and is still quite sick from a relapse of the grip. We hope he will soon be able to assume the duties of his office to which the people have elected him and will make an able and efficient officer.

Both sides endorsed Harrison and the McKinley bill. Two sets of delegates will go to the State convention.

SIX : PAGES.

The value of the law's delay and of securing the right kind of a jury is again demonstrated, this time in said Old Virginia. Last year Dr. Baker, of Abingdon, was convicted and sentenced to death for poisoning his wife, whom he put out of the way in order to marry the wife of a neighbor, who had agreed similarly to dispose of her husband. The court of appeals granted him a new trial and notwithstanding the tell-tale letters revealing the conspiracy were read in court, and it was in testimony that immediately after his wife's death he went to Mrs. — and exclaimed, "Oh, my darling, now you are mine forever," the jury promptly acquitted him, fixed, doubtless, to do so, as the evidence was in every respect as conclusive of guilt as at the first trial. Kentucky does not stand alone in that respect. It is hard everywhere to get the courts and juries to punish men of influence and money, no matter how black their crimes.

JOHN W. KENDALL, congressman from the 10th Kentucky district, died suddenly in Washington, Monday night, of apoplexy. He was serving his first term in Congress, having been elected as a democrat over Hill, republican, by 1,556 majority in 1890, in a district in which his personal popularity helped him almost as much as his politics. During the war he was an officer in the 10th Kentucky Confederate cavalry and since has been twice elected county attorney, twice to the Legislature and served six years as Commonwealth's attorney of the 13th judicial district. His death will necessitate a special election with the chances by no means certain that a democrat will succeed him, though there is considerable timber of that kind lying around loose in the district of an average ability.

The second attempt to organize a Hill Club at Paris proved even more abortive than the first, though the last was made on county court day when the town was full of people. Only eight of the 3,000 countrymen attending court could be corralled into the meeting, which could not proceed until a resolution stating that the club was not antagonistic to Carlisle or any other Kentuckian whose name might be presented to the national convention, was adopted. Another resolution inviting Senator Hill to come to Kentucky was passed and the fizzle fizzled out. Kentuckians are for Cleveland first and then Carlisle and all efforts to lead them to Hill will, like the Paris effort, prove abortive.

LEXINGTON and several other towns having adopted an ordinance forbidding itinerant doctors or empirics to practice in that city, the Courier-Journal is led to make the pointed remark which every newspaper man will appreciate: "The empiric—and it is still a question in medicine where empiricism ends and science begins—will never be forgiven as long as he insists on paying for his advertisement instead of practicing the fine art of working the newspapers to get it free."

PROHIBITION having proved a signal failure in Iowa as everywhere it has been tried, the legislature in response to the popular demand, has repealed the act and passed another providing for local option. High license, where the sale of liquor is permitted, and local option in communities that want it and will sustain such a law, seem to practical men to be the only approach to a solution of the vexed question that has been made.

THE resolution to fix March 22 and the two days following for consideration of the Bland silver bill was adopted after some debate by an overwhelming majority, our member voting with 189 others to that end. It is thought that after the advocates air their opinions and get a chance to go on the record, that the question will give away to the more important one of tariff reduction.

THE Owensboro Messenger thus taunts the man who needlessly insulted the Quinine Statesman at the last State convention: "Let Joe Blackourn tackle Jim McKenzie in a contest for delegate for the State-at-large, and see which of them will be vindicated, the one with his Hillism to carry and the other backed by the Cleveland influence."

THE president has appointed Judson C. Clements, of Georgia, to the vacancy in the Interstate Commerce Commission declined by Judge Lindsay. He is 46 years old and has served four terms in Congress, besides holding numerous State offices. The president had to appoint a democrat and the appointment is said to be a good one.

GEN. ALGER has formally announced his candidacy for president. He and Granny Blair ought to pool their issues if they expect to make any showing at all. Even then Benjamin can tie his hands behind him and knock them both out the first round.

AFTER being abused in season and out of season by the Louisville Critic and the Covington Post for his alleged disposition to shield the lotteries, Hon. Harvey Myers took the editors of those papers to task Wednesday and gave them such a dressing down as has rarely been heard in a legislative hall. Mr. Myers has had much provocation; has been patient and long suffering under persecution and he is in a great measure excused for the bitter exhortation of those who have questioned his honor and assaulted his official integrity.

THE Barbourville Herald, Mr. Lewis D. Sampson, editor, has made its appearance. It is a seven-column quarto, all home print, will be issued weekly at $1 a year, and if the succeeding issues shall approximate the first in excellence it ought to find its way into every home in its section. Mr. Sampson will be assisted by his brother, F. D. Sampson, both in the editorial and business management of the paper, which we hope will prove a gold mine to both of them.

—Dr. Woods presented a resolution which contemplates the confining of the female lunatics of the State in a separate asylum, the converting of the Feeble-minded Institute into such separate asylum and further providing for a less costly, but no less humane, establishment for the feeble-minded children.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

—Henry Gentry, son of the late Reuben Gentry, of Boyle, died Wednesday of quinsy, aged 35. The operation known as tracheotomy was performed on him several days before his death and he breathed through a tube afterwards. He was half owner of the Elmwood Stock Farm and the great stallion Gambetta. His death will be greatly deplored for he was an excellent and popular gentleman.

—A dispatch from Little Rock, Ark., of March 8th, tells of the death of Capt. Ham O. Williams, who was born in Boyle county in 1845. He was a cousin of Mr. L. M. Lasey, of this place, who tells us that the dispatch was erroneous in its statement that he was in the Confederate army. He remained on the farm with his mother and sister, near Mitchellburg. His father was a captain in the Federal army on Gen McCook's staff. He was a very fearless man and to him was due the quelling of the mob during the strike on the Missouri Pacific at East St. Louis. His death, it is claimed, was from wounds received then. At that time he was acting deputy sheriff and, in defending the roundhouse from an attack by the strikers was wounded, one eye being destroyed. Jay Gould sent him a check for $1,000 in acknowledgement of his services. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mr. Joshua Boreing, our post-master, and Egbert Fish left Tuesday night with two Coal Creek convicts for the Nashville pen. Mr. J. W. Stephens, operator at Livingston, was here Tuesday evening to see friends. Miss Mattie Williams returned from Stanford Monday afternoon. Mrs. Georgia Rice left Monday for Anna, Ill., where she takes a position as stenographer and typewriter.

—Isaac Snodgrass, who shot and killed his brother Emmett, last Saturday, came in Monday morning and surrendered to County Judge Lair and his trial set for to-day, Thursday. Self defense will be put forward as the cause for the killing. The defendant claims that the deceased fired the first shot and it is said that such will be proved at the trial by a man living near the scene of the tragedy and who heard the shooting. The dead man was buried 10 miles south-west of this place and near the old home of his wife. Isaac Snodgrass has always been a quiet, sober man and was never known to be quarrelsome or seeker after a difficult fight; but ever since Emmett's trial for killing his brother, Squire, some two years ago, Isaac has been an object of Emmett's dislike, though for what reason we know not. Emmett, when sober, was a quiet, peaceable and clever citizen and one who could have done well, but like many others, liquor caused him much trouble. When drinking he was feared by almost everyone. The sight of Isaac always frenzied him. On the day of the killing the brothers met at Brodhead, where they quarreled. Isaac left for home, stopping at a neighbor's, where he was overtaken by Emmett, who, it is alleged, followed him and ran him away from the house. Isaac went home, got his shotgun and was returning when the brothers met on the highway, about dusk. It is claimed that Emmett drew his pistol and fired one shot just as Isaac got his gun to a level. Isaac's first shot brought Emmett and his horse to the ground. The wounded man rose and staggered to a fence. Three more shots were fired by Isaac, who then reported the tragedy to a neighbor. LATER.—The case passed until Saturday on account of the serious illness of a son of Judge Lair, who is thought to be dying.

THE ODD FELLOWS' TEMPLE, CHICAGO.
—The new temple soon to be built by the Odd Fellows of the State of Illinois at Chicago is to be one of the most imposing structures of the kind in the United States, and the tallest building in the world. Rising to the height of 556 feet, the tower will be visible at a distance of 60 miles, and every available foot of space will be utilized. Upon the ground floor the area will be covered by 43,000 square feet and the total area inclosed by the various floors, exclusive of walls, partitions, corridors, etc., will be something over 350,000 square feet. Twenty stories of the building will be included in the main structure, while the tower is to be 14 stories high, and, like most of the rest of the building, will be devoted to offices, 18 elevators and four stairways giving access to the topmost floor. Five floors of the building are to be devoted to lodge rooms and public halls, among the latter being a drill hall, with an area of 8,000 square feet.—Graphic.

THE LANGUAGE OF MONKEYS.—Professor Garner, who has acquired reputation as a student of the monkey language, proposes to visit Africa, with such appliances for a residence among the gorillas as will enable him to become acquainted with their speech, the vocabulary of which is likely to be richer than that of the ordinary monkeys. He intends to occupy a large and strong iron cage, in which he can be safe from the attacks of the powerful animals, while he listens to their remarks and preserves them by the phonograph. Professor Garner thinks that he will be able to ascertain the views of leading gorillas with less difficulty and more precision than is possible in the case of some distinguished persons who speak with great facility on topics of vital interest.

"Can you afford to dress me well if I marry you?"

"That depends upon what you consider being dressed well. If you mean Worth dresses from Paris, I cannot afford to do so, nor do you need them."

"I don't?"

"No. Your beauty needs no adornment, and it will always eclipse your dress you wear, no matter how fine or how expensive it may be. No one that looks at you sees your dress. The beauty of face and perfection of figure are only noted. All finery sinks into insignificance beside them. What satin is there like your skin? What silk like your hair? What colors to compare with your lips, cheeks and eyes?"

"John, I am yours."

ELECTRIC LIGHTING AT THE WORLD'S EXPOSITION.—The Fine Arts building is to have no fewer than 12,000 incandescent lights. The grand Manufacturers' Hall is to have 2,000 are lights of 2,000 c. p. each. The total reached so far for all buildings is 5,180 are lights and 14,700 incandescents, with some 10,000 more incandescents for the Administration building. Allowing 20 cents per night per are, that means over $1,000 nightly for are lighting; and should all the 25,000 incandescents burn every evening there will be a further item of another $1,000, assuming a rate of 2 cent per lamp per hour for four hours. The lighting effects will certainly be the finest the world has ever seen.

"Do you think any girl ever proposes in leap year, as they say, Jennie?" he asked.

"Not unless she is obliged to," answered the maiden.

"H'm! I hadn't thought of that," he said after a pause.

"But, George," she said, laying her hand affectionately upon his arm and looking into his eyes, "you, I am sure, will never force me to that humiliation."

"No—er—that is to say—of course not."

The ice was broken and three minutes later George was Jennie's accepted.

It is the proud boast of the British that the sun never sets on the Queen's domain. Since the purchase of Alaska, the same can be said of the land of the free and the home of the brave for a few days at a time at least. From the 10th of June to the 2d of July the sun shines on the most northern parts of Alaska during the whole 24 hours of the day and during this time shines on Alaska near the horizon when rising in Maine.

The ancient Romans considered February 29 a most critical season, always reckoning it among their unlucky days. That this belief has not by any means lost ground is evidenced by a deep rooted dislike parents have to a child being born on leap day, it being a popular notion that to come into the world at such an odd time is ominous as signifying the babe's speedy exit.

Land-Seekers.

It will be of interest to those contemplating settling in the Northwest, to know that the choicest farming and timber lands in Wisconsin are tributary to the Wisconsin Central Lines. Settlers on these lines have all the advantages of a genial climate, good market facilities, abundance of fuel and building material, pure and sparkling drinking water and other important benefits which can not be enjoyed on the prairies of the West. No droughts, no cyclones, no grasshopper plague and no fever and ague. Now is the time to select choice lands at low prices. Wisconsin is considered one of the most prosperous States in the Union. Located directly on the Wisconsin Central Lines in this State are the thriving cities of Burlington, Waubesa, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Waupaca, Stevens Point, Marshfield, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, New Richmond and Ashland.

"In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I think with considerable success. Only being in bed a little over two days, against ten days for the first attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy, as I had to go to bed in about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days before getting down." HOG AND HAYRACK.

A Combination "Devoutly to Be Wished For" and Easily Made.

The illustrations show a device which was originated by Mr. James E. Rodgers, of Ostrander, O., and which has come into general use in that part of the country on account of its cheapness and convenience. As a hayrack, to be used in hauling hay, straw or other bulky farm products, the writer hereof has never seen anything more convenient, and the facility with which it may be converted into a convenient rack in which to convey hogs, sheep or calves to market is surprising.

The engravings need but little explanation. Fig. 1, shows the rack after it is put together as it stands on the wagon to hold the hogs, sheep or calves, and Fig. 2 shows precisely the same thing when used as a hayrack.

The framework is constructed as follows: There are two sidepieces (made of oak or other strong stuff, 14 to 16 feet long, as may be desired) 2 by 6 inches, and connected at each end, as shown in drawing, by a 2 by 4 strip fastened firmly by bolts passing through the sidepieces as they rest upright on the wagon. Then there are four crosspieces bolted onto the bottom of sidepieces, as shown, which are made of 2 by 4½ inch lumber, the end ones being placed about six inches from end of sidepieces. A board 1 inch thick and 12 inches wide is firmly fastened lengthwise of the rack, as shown in Fig. 2. The crosspieces are mortised (4½ by 1½ inches) with a slanting mortise to receive the supports of the side frames, as shown. These mortises are made 5½ inches from inside of the sidepieces. The supports of the side framework are made of hard wood and are 3 feet long; at the bottom they are 2 by 3 inches, tapering to 2 by 2 at the top, and at bottom of each a tenon is cut to fit into the mortise in crosspieces. There are four of these supports or uprights on each side, as shown, and to these are bolted and nailed four boards 1 by 4, as shown in diagram. The top of the upright or post is cut at an angle, so that when the top board is fastened on it will be exactly parallel to the crosspieces at the bottom when used as a hayrack, thus furnishing a convenient footing for a man to stand upon when the rack is in position for loading hay. The top board has usually been made same width (4 inches) as the others, but Mr. Rodgers informs us that he thinks it would be better 6 inches wide.

These boards are both bolted and nailed to the uprights and spaced about as follows: The bottom board 7½ inches from the tenon space 3½ inches, second board, space 5½ inches, third board, space 7 inches, top board. The end gates are made as shown in diagram, and are held in place by a rod same as the end gate to a wagon bed. The upright for holding the lines is hinged to the top crosspiece and may be used or removed at pleasure. The whole rack when completed is in five pieces—bottom, sides and ends—each piece firmly made and handled separately in putting together for use on the wagon and separately lifted off and hung up when done using. On the outside of each sidepiece of bottom frame and directly over each crosspiece there is a strong iron staple bolted through the sidepiece, which holds the bottom of the upright when used as a hograck, as shown in Fig. 1. These staples are about 3½ by 1½ in the clear, so that the uprights pass readily through them, the bottom of uprights, after passing through, resting on end of crosspiece, which extends about half an inch outside of frame.

After the parts are all made, first put the bottom framework on the wagon, then place the sides in position. If to be used as a hayrack insert the ends of the uprights into the mortises of the crosspieces so that the upright will rest on the main sidepiece of bottom frame, as in Fig. 2. Then put the upright for holding the lines in its place, insert the bolt that holds it, and the rack is ready for use. If for hauling swine, sheep or calves let the bottom of uprights drop into the staples, as shown in Fig. 1, then put up and fasten the end gates and slide in a board of the proper width on each side of the main centerboard, so as to make a reasonably close floor for the animals to stand on, and the rack is complete. Try it; any farmer can make it, and there is no patent on it. It may be made of any size desired, but the dimensions above given are those that are ordinarily used. The iron bolts used are all half an inch thick.—Breeder's Gazette.

Cotton Seed for Hogs.

Duri-g the past winter and spring we fed cotton seed to hogs with a view of finding out whether they can be so fed without fatal results. We fed them until April and lost no hogs in consequence. The seed was thoroughly steamed, both with and without turps, after which it was generally mixed with some bran before being fed. The hogs soon learned to eat it and seemed to become very fond of it, doing much better than before we began feeding seed, or after we quit. While we have never tried feeding roasted cotton seed, it is very doubtful if it is an improvement on steaming. However, we expect to try the roasting process and will report results later on.—J. E. Little in Texas Farm and Ranch.

College Colors.

All colleges have distinctive "colors" as well as "cries," and they are much more useful. In football matches and rowing races the college colors afford an easy and pleasant method of distinguishing the contestants, when the cries would only confuse. Below is given a list of the colors worn by all the principal colleges in the United States:

New York university, violet.
Yale, blue.
Dartmouth, dark green.
Rutgers, scarlet.
Brown, brown and white.

Pay for Writing Love Letters.

An old lawsuit is again occupying the attention of our court, and Judge Harney is at a loss how to rule on the points of the case, because he is unable to find any similar case on record. The case has been in our court several times, and it was supposed the matter had been dropped. Years ago Mrs. Nancy Martin, who then lived near Linden, secured the services of Miss Franklin Leet, who lived with her, to write love letters for her, as she did not feel able to perform this task herself. Mrs. Martin became acquainted with P. A. King, and in the course of time they were married, his correspondence having been answered by Miss Leet.

After living together almost two years Mrs. King died, without recompensing Miss Leet for her valuable services in wording the love letters so as to catch a husband, as she claimed. Mrs. King, however, had given her a note for $200 for the services, and King, who was appointed administrator, ignored this note, which was on file when he settled up the estate. The suit is to set aside the settlement of the estate in order to get the note in a new settlement.—Crawfordsville Cor. Indianapolis Journal.

Matrimonial Complications.

The particulars of a very strange wedding have just become public. Night before last Mrs. Liza Stanley, a wealthy widow living east of Liberty, was married to Mr. James Esherman. Mrs. Stanley is over forty-five years of age and Esherman is only twenty-one. Mrs. Stanley was left a widow two years ago, when her husband, Lewis Stanley, died, leaving his wife and five children in very comfortable circumstances. He left a good $60 acre farm and over $3,000 in cash. Recently Charles Stanley, of Liberty, who is a son of Mrs. Esherman, was married to a sister of his new stepfather, but his brother-in-law, and his wife's brother and father-in-law,—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Queer Stories of the Royal Family.

The royal family have been much annoyed by the sensational inventions of some journals respecting the circumstances attending their recent loss. The queen is described as having "fallen down" when she was informed of her grandson's death; and another journal stated that her majesty "was obliged to rush into the open air." These stories are entirely fictitious. The queen was fully prepared to hear of her grandson's death, as the latest bulletins had left no ground for hope, and her majesty was quite aware that he had no constitution to carry him through a severe illness. The queen has remained perfectly calm throughout, and is now in her usual excellent health.—London World.

The Head of the Army.

Though the president is commander in chief of the army and navy, his active military and naval duties, beyond the appointment of officers, are understood to be nominal. The duties of the secretaries of war and the navy are chiefly departmental, i. e., the preparing of statistics and reports and the supervision of the executive machinery. The actual command of the army is now exercised by General Schofield, the senior one of the three major generals of the army.—D. D. Bidwell in New York Ledger.

Jewelry Buried.

At a recent funeral of a wealthy Chinaman in San Francisco the dead man's robes and a Chinese ring and bracelet, valued respectively at $350 and $600, were placed in the coffin with him, a pearl and a silver coin were in his mouth, and a fan, a deck of cards, rice, candies and cakes were put in the casket to speed him on his journey.—New York Post.

HAPPY HAMLET.

Far From Home. Notes From New Orleans.

I am far from the hamlet, and as I write the bay stretches out on either side. Out yonder are the white wings of the sailing vessels, long strips of sand, white as a dream of snow, reach along the shores, while the waves wash against the distance, until sky and water are one. Now and then a sea gull rises and vanishes, and curious fishing birds upon bended reeds rock a moment and are gone. Occasionally an alligator slides from the reeds into the bayou and as I lean to the pane I see his curious head-gear gliding towards deeper water. An uncanny picture, but for the train that hurries past, carrying us into gloomier swamps and forests primeval. Great water oaks, draped as with shawls, and long gray scarfs, stand together like mourners, and we begin to think of the days of witchcraft, when a light wind passes and aways these shrouded things; they lose their human look, the shreds of long, gray moss separate and wave about like lost spider skeins; they join again, and rock like voiceless bells, and when still they hang like icicles from a gray roof. But where the red maple lifts up its branches we see great coral sprays, and 'tis easy to imagine underneath a still, dark watery place. On glides the train and we are borne past pines so dark that the blossoming plum, whitening itself against them, seems a spectral tent. But here, where an old shanty is leaning, brightens the peach trees, and our mental sky clears as the train travels on, bearing us further from the great city of New Orleans. Bearing us away, and yet I have but to close my eyes and the city, the throng and the carnival comes. In easy reach of the triumphant passage of Rex and his court, we sit and made mental notes. Madge has brought away a diary of our day's doings there, but I am premeditating. The processions, Rex, Proteus and Comus, named appropriately, "Symbolism of Colors," "Dream of the Vegetable Kingdom" and "The Land of the Rising Sun," were 60 in number, 20 in each parade. It seemed to me that great clouds had been conquered and lowered—these argosies from the summer sky that drift above our world so leisurely, anchoring at intervals. And they—these cloud ships—splintered with lightning, specked with stars, upon which the moon pours her flood of light, could look no lovelier. Best among Rex's floats was "Purity," a car all silver and white, upon which three angels sat surrounded with white doves. Proteus' best vegetable representation was that of Peas. Fancy a pod as long as your room, full of furies, around which were smaller pods and curious worms, and you have the float fronting you. Comus' car was his prettiest and finest idea. Over a field of grain rumbled his chariot, borne along by white storks upon the wing. Back of his throne the moon was poised, which yellowed the glimmering grain.

Madge made an acquaintance, who secured us tickets to the Proteus ball. It was a gay scene, bewildering, and I am yet so confused that I cannot single out one of the costumes. It was at the French Opera House, and after a number of tableaux, the masks, at a given signal, rushed to the parqu岸, where beautiful women in full dress were seated, and selected each a partner. It was amusing to watch the beauties. Some became impatient and their heads bobbed about like owls; others arose and went forward, only to return and consider the saying, "There's luck in leisure," but after a time they were all paired off and the dancing began. A kaelidoscope, shifting bright bits of jewels before one, could not have been more interesting, and my memory of it is yet in a tangle.

We found ourselves in a steam yacht next day, en route to the Aurora, the Austrian war ship, just across the river from New Orleans. The yacht was heavily loaded and we were on a level with waves, but it was fun to see the women dodging from the shower that washed over the edge of our boat. When we came alongside the ship and were scrambling up the stairway a warm hand was laid down and clasped Madge's. I saw a blush on her cheek and understood, and let the happy pair wander off on deck alone. Madge is fickle, but who would not be delighted to meet an old lover under such circumstances? There they sat, each smiling into the other's eyes, oblivious of the wide river, the jackdaws floating over the waves, the city pale in the distance, even the big ship, about which I was loafing. After examining the cannons, two of which fired 30 times a minute, I passed down into the officers' quarters and found them dining. In striking contrast was the eating place of the sailors. They stood about the long, low room, each with a tin plate, and a bowl of noodle soup. But there was something so picturesque about them that I longed for my easel and canvas. These Austrian sailors, 212 in number, their round, dark faces, their blue blouse waists and triangular caps made a memory that I shall treasure long. But alas! why is it that wherever I go I find something sorrowful mingling with my delight? Away in a dark cell, robbed of his uniform, pale and sick, sat a sailor in jail; he had stolen some money and for six months the waves and the winds had been barred from his vision.

Madge and her lover left me later in the day for an afternoon at the cemeteries, and after lunch I sauntered into the Cotton Exchange. A sale was called and next to the scene in Lillian Lewis' "Credit Lorraine," I will put it down as the most exciting event of my life. Those men bidding and bickering and wearing out their brains and hearts—I was glad enough to escape and climb to the summit of the building, where I secured a bird's-eye view of the city. The breeze came fresh and warm against my face and with it a couplet from some one's similar experience:

"The wind just kissed by Summer's mouth
Sighed like a lover from the South."

When I descended again the crowd had thinned and I began to study the ceiling paintings by Hawkins, one of which was De Soto pointing out the source of the Mississippi, and it, together with the other three, comprised the entire inner space of the ceiling. About dusk Madge came with a wonderful description of the cemeteries, all of which I hope to relate in my papers to the INTERIOR JOURNAL. Our ten days' stay in the city is full of memories and mementoes, and we are eager to share with you a part of them. We are now en route to Pensacola and will probably see Atlanta and Lookout Mountain, but New Orleans is our theme for many an hour yet. The picture galleries, museums, churches, the Howard library, the lovely flower gardens, the rose vines, and the orange blossoms are all crowding about my pen. Busy Body.

RAILROAD JOTTINGS.

A large amount of new motive power will be added to the equipment of the Pennsylvania road during next year. Fully 250 engines will be built for use on the lines east of Pittsburgh and over 100 for the lines west of Pittsburgh.

The New York and Long Branch Railroad company, after considerable delay, has finally decided to build a station at North Asbury Park. The present station is a little dilapidated building, not only unsightly in appearance, but entirely inadequate to the demands of the town.

HUMGR.

HEALTH.

A Few Rules and Remarks Appropriate for All.

A few remarks about the care of the health are quite in order at this season of the year.

Take your health to some safe place and hide it. People are on the lookout for health all the time and they might steal yours. If you haven't any health of course you needn't worry about it, and in fact need not read this article.

Do not run after a cold. A cold does not run so fast but that, slow as you are, you might catch it. Having caught it, however, try to give it to the rest of your family so they will not bother you with their sympathy.

Be careful what you eat. People who live in boarding houses should pay special attention to this.

Be careful what you wear. Wear good warm clothes if you have them. Otherwise wear what you have and tell people that they are warm.

Be cheerful. All you have to do to be cheerful is to try. It is so easy.

Be careful what you breathe. If possible have the air you breathe analyzed before you breathe it. At any rate breathe as little as possible.

Do not sleep more than eight hours a day. You will have plenty of time to sleep after you are dead. It is therefore a waste of time.

Be careful what you drink. It is your duty to drink something, however, as the government must have a revenue. If you are invited to drink by a friend, drink a more expensive drink than you would under other circumstances. This will help you to be cheerful.

In case you should die your need not send the editor of this paper your change of address, so that is one thing less to worry about. Much as the inhabitants want it, life is not received at either place.—Tom Hall in Life.

What Shillaber Said of Him.

They were discussing the virtues and failings—principally the latter—of a man slightly known to both of them. The thin, sharp little fellow knew the subject of discussion somewhat better than the heavy set man, and spoke with a trifle more assurance.

"I always thought he was a scamp," said the heavy set man.

"He is a scamp," replied the little fellow.

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. Why, I know of a case where he cheated an orphan out of half an inheritance."

"Yes; I heard of that."

"Then he failed just to beat his creditors out of some money."

"So I was told."

"He has been charged with setting fire to his store to get the insurance."

"I know that has been rumored, but then Shillaber—"

"Yes. Shillaber has had more experience with him than any one else."

"Well, Shillaber speaks highly of him."

"Who says so?"

"Why, I heard him myself."

"What did he say?"

"Oh, it was just a passing remark. His name was mentioned, and Shillaber said he hadn't a crooked hair in his head!"

"Yes."

"Oh, well," explained the little man.

"I suppose Shillaber thought you had noticed that the scoundrel is as bald as a billiard ball."—Chicago Tribune.

His Revenge.

Peddler (opening his pack)—I am introducing into this neighborhood, madam, a little book on—

Housewife (slamming the door in his face)—I don't want anything!

Peddler (loud enough for all the neighbors to hear)—A little book on good manners, madam, but you don't seem to need any. Good afternoon.—Chicago Tribune.

Cremation Item.

Little Tommy Peterby, five years old, has been poking at the range and burned a hole in his sleeve. His mother says:

"You will surely catch afire and there will be nothing left of you but a little pile of ashes. What will I say then?"

"You will say, 'Kate, shovel up those ashes!'"—Texas Siftings.

An Expedient.

Husband—What are we going to do about that hand organ that plays in front of our windows every morning and almost drives me wild?

Wife—We might take a trip to Europe.—Epoch.

Force of Habit.

Customer—I would like a glass of hot soda.

Fountain Boy—With or without ice cream?—Exchange.

Consolidation.

Smithkins—Yes, Jones, I am fat, distressingly fat. But I have one consolation.

In the happy hereafter I shall not be troubled with this adipose excess.

Jones—How so?

Smithkins—Why, you know, corporations have no souls.—Brooklyn Life.

AN OSTRICH FARM.

Some Facts About a New Live Stock Industry.

A writer in The Poultry Monthly says: "While attending the Los Angeles Kennel club show, I could not resist the temptation of driving out to the ostrich farm, at Santa Monica. The enterprising owner deserves considerable credit for his pluck. Several of these enterprises have proved financial failures. One was recently disposed of at a great loss. The one we are about to describe is acknowledged by all to be a success. The farm consists of four acres, divided into about twelve small lots, with a five acre outside run not in use at present. There are forty-three birds on the farm at present writing, valued at from $300 to $400 each. The birds are fed on alfalfa, cabbage, cauliflower, beets, oranges and such like food. The males are not very quarrelsome, but occasionally fight across the fences, doing but little damage, however, as they have very little power in their beaks; their defense lies wholly in their feet.

"The attendant showed us several inch planks broken in two pieces by a kick. The adult birds are robbed of their beautiful plumes every seven months. The process of plucking must be anything but pleasant, as it takes four men to hold one bird. The young birds on the farm, sixteen in number, about nine months old, were raised at Santa Barbara. They have found it impossible to raise them at Santa Monica on account of the proximity to the sea—about 500 yards. Those hatched at Santa Barbara are all hatched in incubators. The feathers of the adult birds bring from $50 to $100 per pound. Fans and feather ornaments are made on the premises and form no small portion of the profit. The proprietor also charges twenty-five cents admission to the grounds.

"We fail to see any reason why this industry cannot be made to pay a very large profit. If the young ostriches can be raised at Santa Barbara, they certainly can be raised elsewhere."

Before the Chickens Are Hatched.

The boys and girls who like carpentry ought not to be content with slatted boxes; they might build for their March broods snug houses, easy to clean, and to move along the garden rows and secure against rats, cats, dogs, foxes, minks, weasels, snakes, owls and hawks. Good coops, if generally used, would save every year many thousands of chickens. Light boxes furnish good, cheap lumber for this work.

A most important place now is the hatching room. Though incubators seem best for market chickens and ordinary laying stock, I believe we will always find best as high class fowls those hatched in March or later under strong, fluffy hens and reared by watchful hen mothers in the open air or in a sunny shed. It is often better to set several hens at once. If eggs for hatching are kept in a temperature of from 50 to 70 degs., and turned every day, they can be saved for two weeks without the yolk adhering to the shell. Have quiet rooms for the sitting hens, with clean nests and dust baths. If there are eggs found in the nests so dirty that they must be washed, it is well to wash them after dark when there is no danger of the hen leaving them to be fatally chilled. There should be frames with which to fasten each hen on her nest for the first few days of sitting, but after that they will not often be needed. I have had fourteen hens sitting in one room, free to leave their nests at any time, and all so quiet that one could hear no sound but that of the sitters turning their eggs. They do that very often. It sounds as if they did it roughly, but they seem never to break one.—Exchange.

Live Stock Points.

Henry Gibbons, a prominent farmer near Wilkesbarre, Pa., was gored to death recently by a bull that he was trying to lead out of the stable. He died almost instantly.

The hornless bull should be encouraged.

The approved average in weight for a Dutch belted cow is 1,000 pounds. These cows give a large yield of milk in proportion to their size.

Every year poor horses go lower in price and good ones go higher.

The principal thing in the cattle trade just now is the wrangling of rival stock yards.

Horse breeders want a sire that matures early, has the fewest possible blemishes and has a good pedigree behind him. This kind of horse, with a first class mare, will bring most profit to breeder and farmer.

Remember that nothing is better for hogs than the ashes of corn cobs as an aid to digestion. Wherever you can get this secure it.

Coal cinders or fine coal dust with shorts is good for hogs.

You cannot bear it in mind too strongly that in breeding you must weed out all inferior and scrub stock. Never under any circumstances breed from a poor animal. It will grade your stock down instead of up. This is true of every kind of live stock.

The best corner you can have is a fine lot of cattle, hogs and sheep.

Suno's trainer, Marvin, to Robert Bonner, "Barring accidents, next year we will put the mark where it will be above high water mark while you and I live, I think."

Some first class Shropshire lambs, raised in Indiana, were sold in the Chicago market recently at six dollars a head.

Any state swine breeders' association or any swine record association may be admitted to membership in the National Swine Breeders' association by the annual payment of ten dollars, entitling each to ten votes, and any respectable breeder or feeder of swine may become a member by the payment of one dollar annually, entitling him to one vote.

A farmer who writes to renew the subscription to his paper says that he pays for it with the money his hens earned. Good idea.

Misses BEAUREGARD STUART, of Crab Orchard, and Ella May Saunders, of this place, went to Louisville Wednesday to spend some time with friends.

Dr. Ed. ALCOCK, of Hustonville, one of the most prominent physicians of Lincoln county, is in the city stopping at the Fifth Avenue, Louisville Commercial.

Miss TILLIE HALL, who has been the guest of the Misses Baughman and other friends for a couple of weeks, returned to Winchester yesterday. Miss Hall is a lovely young lady and her visits always bring sunshine and happiness to her many friends here.

CITY AND VICINITY.

NEW LINE of Zeigler shoes just received at S. H. Shanks.

NORTHERN seed potatoes, onion sets and garden seeds at McKinney Bros.

H. H. PADGETT and Miss L. B. Jeffers were married yesterday, near Waynesburg.

WANTED.—Eggs at 12¢, Butter 25 cents. Hides, tallow and feathers at the highest market prices. B. K. & W. H. WEAREN.

ATTENTION is called to the card of Mr. J. H. Baughman, insurance agent, who can always be found at the First National Bank.

In appreciation of him as its agent here, The John Brenner Brewing Co., of Cincinnati, has sent Mr. E. Bremer a handsome wagon to deliver beer to his customers.

BANK STOCK FOR SALE.—If not sold privately, I will sell publicly on county court day, March 14th, a number of shares of stock in the Farmers Bank and Trust Co. J. H. Baughman.

SPECIAL attention is called to the advertisement of Mr. A. E. Gibbons, the artistic Danville dealer in wall paper and other household ornamental goods. He carries the largest and finest stock in all this country.

THE NOMINEES.—The requisite number of the committee met with the Chairman J. B. Paxton on the day fixed by the order and after a count of the vote cast at Saturday's primary, declared Jas. P. Bailey and John N. Menefee the nominees for circuit clerk and sheriff.

THE EXAMINING TRIAL of Wm. Cooley for shooting Warren Clymer was again postponed yesterday. Mr. Clymer's condition still being such as to make his presence impossible. By agreement it was set for next Saturday at 1 o'clock, and in the meantime the deposition of the wounded man will be taken. He is threatened with blood poisoning and a fatal termination may not be improbable.

LEBANON'S new jail failed to hold its prisoners the other night. Wm. Weatherford, of Casey, charged with forgery, Henry Bush, colored, with housebreaking, and John Raley, with grand larceny, made their escape by raising a solid stone in the ceiling. A reward of $100 is offered for the capture of Wm. Weatherford. A liberal reward will also be paid for the arrest of Bush and Raley.

THERE was the old fight for Denny at Lancaster for instructions for delegates at large to the national convention, but his friends were not strong enough to force it and Col. Bradley alone was instructed for. The plea that it was Denny's old county didn't work. Col. Bradley's friends were not disposed to put him in the race handicapped in any way. The colonel always beats 'em at home and abroad.

FRESH FISH Saturday. M. F. Elkin & Co.

N. Y. SEED potatoes, onion sets and all kinds of garden seed at J. B. Foster's.

If Cain were alive to-day he would be farming somewhere near Mt. Vernon.—Courier-Journal.

THE law firm of Miller & Owsley has dissolved. Mr. Miller will remain at the old office, while Mr. Owsley will go to the Owsley block.

It is Mrs. Eva Ward, widow of Mr. Reese Ward, who has the nice property in Crab Orchard for sale. The types made it Mrs. Eva Smith.

NEW STORE.—Messrs. J. H. Greer and B. F. Routen will open a first-class grocery at Rowland this week in the store-room opposite Isaac Hamilton's.

By the derailing of a freight car at the mouth of a tunnel, near Hazel Patch, the north-bound passenger train Tuesday was delayed five hours. No one was hurt.

DR. BRONAUH says that there is another boy at Mr. F. M. Ansley's and it weighs 11½ pounds. The old man is as proud as if it was the first instead of the sixth and sends us word it is another Cleveland democrat.

H. J. McROBERTS has bought of W. M. Lackey a lot containing nearly an acre, situated on Logan avenue and lying between Mr. Lackey's house and the railroad, for $500. Mr. McRoberts will begin building a two-story residence on it as soon as the weather permits.

WHILE the Snodgrass brothers at home are doing everything to exterminate one another, one is off in far Japan trying to convert the heathen. Missionary work, like charity, should begin at home, and the Rev. Eugene would find a fruitful field right in his own Rockcastle home.

UNSUCCESSFUL attempts to break into Mr. A. R. Penny's drug store, Bourne's and the McKinney Bros' stores were made Wednesday night. A cold chisel or something of the sort was driven between the doors of each, but they refused to be prised open. The scoundrels won't be given another chance at the same game.

It is sent out from Danville that Capt. Wm. Herndon has announced himself a candidate for circuit judge in the proposed new district of Mercer, Garrard, Boyle, Lincoln and Casey, which he says is by no means certain to elect a democrat. If he is the republican candidate, and the democrats nominate any sort of a competent man, we will wager two to one that the captain will never be elected.

THERE are eight brothers living in this county, the smallest of which is six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. The largest stands six, two inches in his sock feet and tips the beam at 228 pounds. They are Messrs. A. H. J. D. Lige, M. S. George, Sam, Alex and A. B. Bastin, and are sons of the late William Bastin, who was a comparatively small man. Their mother was a small lady, but a very hearty one, and was the mother of 15 children.

THE Court of Levy adjourned after passing on Sheriff Menefee's delinquent tax list. He showed that $16,287 worth of property had been wrongly assessed and that poll taxes to the number of 40 had been charged firms and women and he was accordingly credited with the same. He returned $14,812 worth of property as delinquent and a list of 610 polls was accepted as delinquent. The number is about the average. Having no power to make a levy till the legislature passes the act authorizing it, that duty was postponed till the act is passed and the county judge convenes the magistrates into another session.

THE Lincoln county jury in the case against George Word, at Danville, for the murder of Marshal Wells, failed to agree and were discharged at noon Wednesday. When the jury first went to the room they stood on a vote nine for hanging and three for manslaughter. Those for hanging finally agreed to life imprisonment and two of the manslaughter men joined them, but one, Squire L. K. Wells, stuck to 21 years and would not budge from his position. The jury was on the case just seven days and drew for their services from $23 to $30 each, which included mileage. The whole 75 men summoned from this county got in the aggregate $750.

TUESDAY a white woman, claiming that she had recently lost her family from the grip and was herself unable to make a living, asked alms from the citizens here, but met with very poor success, as she was the third one to do likewise in the last few days. Patience had seemingly ceased to be a virtue and when she went into McKinney Bros' store and was met with a refusal, she put on her war paint and gave the elder member of the firm a severe "cussing" and threatened to whip sheel out of somebody if she was not more successful. It is indeed hard to tell when a person does a charitable act when he helps the numerous beggars that come along, and it is about the best way to turn a cold shoulder to them all.

JUDGE J. W. ALCOCK has received from A. C. Carr, of the Middleboro Furniture Co., a book case made out of native pine, which shows the excellency of the timber in that region as well as Mr. Carr's capabilities as a wood worker.

FOR RENT.—The six-room dwelling and premises attached, the late residence of Mrs. E. C. Helm, for term of one year, with privilege of renewal. Carpets and furniture for sale. For rent ½ of the house, yard and garden, three acres, of the old Craig place, half way between Stanford and Rowland. Apply at once. S. C. Helm, adm'r.

THE Fourth National Bank of Columbus, Ga., E. P. Owsley, cashier, which started business about Feb. 1, makes a very excellent statement. The capital stock paid in is $75,000, its loans and discounts $42,285.69, undivided profits $1,794.23 and its deposits $91,487.18. Half of the stock is owned by Lincoln county people.

THE case of the First National Bank of Stanford vs. the late Levi Hubble as surety for R. T. Mattingly on the purchase notes for the Roller Mill property, in which Mr. Hubble was released by the lower courts has been reversed by the Court of Appeals, but it is not known upon what grounds or how radical the nature of the reversal.

JAILER OWENS received a telegram Tuesday from the jailer at Richmond stating that William Purnell, who was arrested and fined for disorderly conduct on election day here, was wanted there, he having gotten out of jail several months ago. The jailer and Marshal Newland started out immediately to search for the fugitive, but were unable to find trace of him.

THOSE who went to bed Wednesday night, after looking upon a moonlit world and a cloudless sky, were surprised to find the ground covered with snow on awaking yesterday morning. It was again perfectly clear, but clouds soon came and at intervals all day gusts of snow almost blinded those who had to be out of doors. It was a veritable March day, and no mistake. At an early hour yesterday this office received the following telegram from Washington: "Hoist cold wave signal. Temperature will fall about 20° by Friday morning." A later dispatch said it would be fair and colder Friday, with slowly rising temperature.

MISS ANNE SHANKS entertained a number of her friends, Wednesday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Mary Pickett, of Shelbyville. It was a very delightful occasion and greatly enjoyed by the following ladies and gentlemen: Misses Tillie Hall, Mattie and Maggie Owsley, Annie, Kittie and Annie Baughman, Annie and Mary Alcorn and Annie Dunn, and Messrs. R. G. and J. G. Denny, W. A. Tribble, P. M. McRoberts, J. H. Baughman, W. B. McKinney, W. H. Wearren, J. S. Wells, C. C. Breese, Will Severance, Gabe Lacey, Harvey Helm and Dr. A. S. Price. The supper was very comprehensive and was handsomely served in seven courses.

MY DREAM.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)

Being transported in a dream to a beautiful city situated in the heart of the blue-grass region of Kentucky, and finding that the train I contemplated leaving upon was some two or three hours late, I concluded to take a stroll about the city. Leisurely walking along I suddenly found myself in front of a very imposing structure surrounded by spacious and most beautiful grounds. Above the entrance or gateway to these grounds was this sign in large letters—"Asylum for the Insane." Never having visited an institution of this sort and finding my time dragging heavily upon my hands, I concluded to go in and look through the building. So approaching the front door I rang the door bell. I was not kept long in waiting before, a servant approached and I was conducted to the superintendent of the building to whom I made known my desire. I was put in charge of an attendant who proceeded to show me through the different wards of the institution. Taking my time and occasionally glancing into the cells of the poor unfortunates, my heart meanwhile overwhelmed with sadness. I soon found myself in front of cell No. 13, which contained a man, the expression of whose face suddenly fixed my attention upon him and who at some time in the past I was certain of having seen. He was a man of slender build with dark hair and eyes rather of the piercing kind, unbecoming in their expression, without the least indication of sympathy in their glance—rather of the raven's cold cast. In fact he would impress one at a glance as a man who would have been peculiarly fitted to have presided at a court of inquiry in the days of the Inquisition.

My attention had been so completely absorbed in contemplating this man that my attendant had moved on without me to the end of the corridor and had taken a seat near a window and was waiting until I should join him. When I came up he asked me if I knew the inmate of cell No. 13. To which I replied that I could not say I did, though I thought his face somewhat familiar. He stated that No. 13 had a peculiarly sad and rather a tragic history and if I cared to hear it he would relate it to me just as he got it from the inmate and this was the narrative:

"During the late unpleasantness, though somewhat young, I was old enough to take a hand in the conflict then raging. As almost all of my companions were enlisting in the Southern Cause, I cast my lot with them. My experiences during the days and months of my career as a soldier was of a most thrilling character. I underwent many hardships and passing through many hairbreadth escapes; dealing out blows without stint and with unnecessary cruelty at times, I fear; taking human life with the least provocation; one particular occasion, which I now call to mind, and which I fear I shall never forget, to wit: When I, with some four or five of my companions in arms, with unerring aim killed some 20 or 25 of the enemy in one little engagement, shooting them everyone in the head. The scenes which I passed through then, long after the war was over still haunted me. As I came out of the war poor and without a vocation, and with a desire to make amends so far as possible for the wrongs done while a soldier, naturally my thoughts turned to the ministry. But having very little education there were but few fields for me to work in, in such a calling. As there was, however, one sect or denomination which required no special qualifications for its preachers, I became one of their number and took a pulpit.

I was not long engaged in my new work before I discovered that one of two things was indispensable to a successful ministry. That a man must either be a scholar to enable him to probe the deep and difficult teachings of the plan of salvation under the law; or else he must be imbued with grace that by the aid of the Spirit he might read the Scriptures between the lines and get the beautiful truths contained therein, but which are almost smothered out by the cold letter of the word. As I possessed neither of these qualifications I foresaw that it would be only a question of a very short time before I would have to give up my charge. Being, however, possessed of a determined will power, and an unusual amount of pride, and knowing the proneness of the human race to lose sight of the deeper, and more enduring truths for the lighter things of life, I began to puzzle my mind to discover something of a secular nature to distract my congregation's mind from my inefficiency. About this time there was being agitated in several States of the Union the question of prohibition. I concluded that this was my chance. So I adopted local option or prohibition as the "key note" to my discourses and I have been grinding out sermons of this sort ever since.

My congregations were good and for a while I flattered myself that I had made a lucky hit. But in time I discovered my mistake. When taking charge of a congregation I noticed that there was a comparatively good feeling existing among all classes of whatever views they held in the community in which my church was located; but after I had hammered them a year or so I discovered that dissensions arose and their differences, though trivial, became aggravated until the whole community became convulsed and were ready to tear each other to pieces on the least provocation. By my tirades young men were driven into all kinds of excesses and things generally became intolerable. I went from community to community, but always retired after the same results.

So terrible has been my retribution that my poor mind gave way under the strain and you find me here."

The attendant told me that as he approached the close of his narrative his manner became violent and that he ended in the most vehement ravings terrible to behold. A FREE LANCE.

LIBERTY, CASEY COUNTY.

—Your Liberty scribe, after 14 days rambling through the counties of Lincoln, Boyle, Washington, Mercer and Garrard, returned Monday evening, sound in mind and in reasonably good physical condition.

—Mr. M. K. Humphrey, a young man of bright promise, while taking vigorous athletic exercise, severely sprained his knee and has been confined to his bed for some days, suffering much pain and is liable to be laid up for some time.

—The venerable Amerlek T. Royalty, now in his 82d year, who has been very low for some time, and serious apprehensions felt for him, we are pleased to inform his friends, is now improving and it is hoped will soon be on the streets again.

—Mr. James C. Wilkinson was in town today, it being the first time your correspondent has seen him since his return from Texas. Jim is perfectly incensed with the Lone Star State and I guess will cast his fortunes there. After experiencing all the floods and droughts prevalent there, and the boll worms, caterpillars, army worms and other insects devouring his crops, and the ticks, mosquitoes and chiggers feeding upon his own vitals, he will often dream of the clear, cool spring water and delicious fruits and garden vegetables of old Casey. Elijah Coffey has just returned from a four days' trip to Louisville.

—You know, Mr. Editor, that a few years ago, when your scribe returned after years of sojourning in a distant State, you were inclined to "poke" fun at him in a private way for inclining to believe that Casey was the garden spot of the world. I still maintain that if all the capacities of Casey county were fully developed she would rival, if not surpass, your own section. You know long years ago you deemed yourselves made out of superior dirt, while you believed the Caseyites only made out of the commonest dust of the earth. But times are changing. It may not be long in the future when you will be proud to have the privilege of associating with the people of Casey. Be cautious how you turn up your noses at the "pauper" counties.

—From close observation my recent trip through several counties in the heart of the Blue-Grass region, I see the marks of advancement and improvement much more visibly here than there. In our generally fertile valleys, primitive houses have given place to fine mansions and beautiful cottages; and even on the knobs there are many nice houses in place of the rude huts of former days. The natural timber resources of Casey partly tell the tale. In Washington and Mercer counties the old log houses intrude in unpleasant proximity to such places as Macksville and Harrodsburg; and in the Sugar Creek section of Garrard county there has not been much change in the last 40 years. But one pleasant thing to contemplate, that in the sections named we find the genuine friendship and hospitality of olden times, which will compensate for all lack in keeping pace with Casey county. And in conclusion on this subject, we tender our heartfelt bows for hospitalities and courtesies received, to Thomas J. Graves and John A. Gillespie, Macksville, Capt. Wm. J. Hagan and Mr. Ballard, Bryantsville, J. Sam Johnson and J. K. West, Marksburg; also to Gabriel Greenleaf and Capt. Boss Dillon, Lancaster, Thos. Austin, Hammock, F. W. Dillon, Crab Orchard, and J. W. Adams, Rowland.

—Mrs. Fannie Ballard, formerly Miss Fannie Pollard, died at her father's, Mr. Robert Pollard, Sunday night. Her remains were interred in Lancaster cemetery Monday. She had only been married a short time. We sympathize with the husband she leaves to mourn her departure.

—Mr. Ben Wilmot and Miss Maggie Herrin, the daughter of James Herrin, were joined in matrimony at the bride's mother's Tuesday evening at 4 o'clock, and at once came to his brother's, where the happy couple and their many friends partook of the good supper prepared by his sister and brother. May their days be many, useful and happy.

Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain; she grew worse rapidly until she was a mere "bundle of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold; yet you may get you a trial bottle free at A. R. Penny's drug store.
